Riverfront Development Committee plans 'crown jewel'

BY MARK CAMPBELL

After completing a grassroots multi-million dollar improvement project along the Ohio River last fall that was more than three decades in the making, it would have been easy for Madison's Riverfront Development Committee to take a break from the non-stop fundraising, planning and improvement projects that have reshaped the city's riverfront.

But for a group that has focused on a vision for the city's riverfront from the beginning, it's just time to launch the next big project and this one could end up being the crown jewel to everything that's taken place on the south side of Vaughn Drive over the last 33 years.

Madison Riverfront Development Committee member JD Webster goes over details of a proposed $750,000 project to design and construct a new Ohio River overlook where the Madison Regatta judges stand is now located off Vaughn Drive on the riverfront. The project would provide a more accessible area for the judges stand and an area for VIP seating between two existing overlooks as well as a venue for outdoor concerts, weddings and other events.

Like many communities throughout the nation that are protesting the death of George Floyd and others described as being racially motivated, Madison residents and a few visitors from other communities gathered to hold up signs and greet people on the Jefferson County Courthouse square during a peaceful protest against discrimination and hate crimes Friday afternoon. Some of the same group gathered Saturday evening for a vigil at the Broadway Fountain.

Jail plans nearing end of first phase

BY COLLIN OVERTON

Officials with the Jefferson County Sheriff's Office and architects from the firm DLZ further narrowed design specs for a new county jail Friday as that project draws nearer to the design development phase.

Holding their first in-person meeting since March at the Jefferson County Public Safety Center, the ad-hoc Jail Committee identified several additional areas they'd like changed, including rearranging the parking lot and consolidating the detective offices to meet work demands. The jail so far is planned to encompass about 81,000 square feet and house 296

Motorcyclist dies in apparent wreck on West Deputy Pike

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

A Madison man who was reported missing on Sunday night was found dead in a field close to the motorcycle he was riding early Monday morning, according to the Jefferson County Sheriff's Office.

Jefferson County Central Dispatch received a call at about 11:30 p.m. Sunday from a caller reporting that her husband, Joseph Wall, 33, of Madison, had been missing since 6 o'clock that evening. Wall reportedly left his residence around that time and was en route to the Deputy area.

Around 4 a.m. Monday, Dispatch received a call from a passing motorist who said he had spotted a motorcycle lying in a field in the 8900 block of West Deputy Pike Road. King's Daughters' EMS

Victim in fatal shooting was suspect's nephew

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

Formal charges were filed in Dearborn County Circuit Court on June 1, charging Robert Lee Marksberry, 64, with one count of murder in the shooting death of Nicholas Woodruff, 19.

The Switzerland County man charged with murder in connection with a May 28 shooting death in Aurora is actually the 19-year-old victim's uncle.

Formal charges were filed in Dearborn County Circuit Court on June 1, charging Robert Lee Marksberry, 64, with one count of murder in the shooting death of Nicholas Woodruff, 19, near the residence of Marksberry's half-brother Terry Woodruff — Nicholas Woodruff's father — on West Conwell Street in Aurora.

According to police, Marksberry had been at the Woodruff residence for several hours when he decided to leave at about 10 a.m. Marksberry, who was driving, and his passenger, Michael Tunstall, were in the process of leaving when Terry Woodruff stopped them to talk. At some point Nicholas Woodruff came out of the residence and proceeded to the roadway where the conversation was ongoing and, according to police, hopped into the bed of Marksberry's truck and picked up either a chainsaw or trimmer.

Marksberry allegedly made a remark to the effect of, "Don't think you're going to be stealing my stuff ... I'll shoot you." Nicholas Woodruff exited the bed of the pickup truck, came to the driver's side door where Marksberry was seated and allegedly struck Marksberry in the face with his fist. Marksberry then allegedly shot Nicholas Woodruff in the heart with a .32 caliber handgun and sped away.

Nicholas Woodruff was immediately transported to High Point Health in Lawrenceburg where he died from his injuries.

Marksberry was located on the morning of May 29, at a residence near Bennington in Switzerland County, where he was taken into custody. He allegedly told detectives that his girlfriend had kicked him out of the house and that he had been at his friend's house in Switzerland County all day.

However, police later learned that Marksberry had purchased the gun and two bullets earlier on the day of the shooting from a family member in Aurora.

Marksberry is being held at the Dearborn County Law Enforcement Center pending his initial hearing in Dearborn Circuit Court.

and sheriff's deputies responded to the scene and found both the motorcycle and Wall in the field.

The Jefferson County Coroner's Office pronounced Wall dead at the scene. Coroner Rodney Nay said Wall's death was most likely caused by fractured skull sustained in a crash.

The sheriff's and coroner's offices are investigating.

PLANE

Preliminary findings reveal that a Cessna Skyhawk C172 single-engine plane left Bowman Field in Louisville a few minutes after 3 p.m. Investigators believe the plane went down at around 3:23 p.m. — the area of the crash is located between the towns of New Washington and Bethlehem in Clark County — but they do not yet know the cause of the crash.

The pilot and lone occupant of the plane was Joshua E. Warren, 30, of Louisville. The Clark County Coroner's Office pronounced Warren dead at the scene.

Warren was a band teacher at Fern Creek High School in Louisville, according to a Facebook post from the school mourning his death.

"He was an amazing musician, but even more, he was amazing with our students," his supervising principal Jai Wilson said. " A true 'warm demander,' Josh was a little bit 'fun uncle' and a little bit 'strict dad' and he got things done."

Investigators from the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) and the National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB) are investigating.

week to propose what could end up being a $750,000 development on the riverfront in the two block area between West and Jefferson streets. The two non-profit organizations are teaming up to increase their fundraising potential because the development will need that kind of financial resources to benefit them as well as a multitude of existing and potential events on the river.

Webster brought with him two architectural drawings for a massive upgrade to the Madison Regatta Judges Stand that would reshape the area and construct tiered seating, safer walkways and stairs — and handicap access for those with disabilities — as well as all the lighting and infrastructure improvements needed to make the area suitable as not only a much improved judge's stand but a venue capable of hosting numerous other events from concerts to weddings, festivals and riverboat visits day or night.

"We considered several proposals and this is the one that kind of percolated to the top," Webster told the Commission. "We've got a little bit of money to get in the game but it's going to have to be funded by many sources."

Webster said the Riverfront Development has put up the first $70,000 for design and engineering costs and Madison Regatta has agreed to chip in more than $100,000 in state motorsports grant funding. However, they will need city support as well as donations from business and industries and more of the grassroots fundraising efforts that have helped fund the sidewalks, overlooks, benches and street lamps from Madison's Heritage Trail to the west to the city's RV campground to the east over the last 33 years.

At the base of the project, the Riverfront Committee is proposing building another overlook on the Ohio River but this time it will be the mother of all overlooks with amenities not seen at any of the smaller areas where benches provided gathering areas along the river.

"This will be the crown jewel of the riverfront," Webster said, pointing out features in what for now is being called "Madison Riverfront Majestic Overlook."

He said the facility will be the type of facility that can serve as a venue for concerts overlooking the river, outdoor weddings and festivals for small to large groups and as a destination for tourists both by land and water with telescopes and an observation deck. The plan is to make that all happen sooner rather than later and True agreed.

After having to cancel next month's 70th annual Madison Regatta — when the city was scheduled to host the APBA Gold Cup for a second consecutive year — due to the COVID-19 pandemic, True and Webster both want to see the project completed in time for next year's race when the H1 Unlimited hydroplane series and Gold Cup are scheduled to be back on the Ohio River at Madison in July 2021.

To do that, ground will have to be broken in late summer with work taking place over the winter before the river starts rising in the spring.

According to Webster, the only thing holding that up is the city's blessing and enough money to make it happen and he was seeking both last week and will be calling on other local resources as well.

Mayor Bob Courtney and the city's Redevelopment Commission, which oversees expenditure of the city's development funds from the Tax Incremented Finance District, all seemed favorable to the proposal.

"I think it's fantastic and I think you can look at it as an economic development investment," Courtney said, noting it all falls under the city's current mission to "improve quality of space" and "improve quality of life" which will then attract new residents which will attract more business and jobs.

Courtney said the city will most like launch a bond issue in the coming months to make improvements to several city parks — an evaluation is currently underway to determine what needs exist — and the riverfront certainly qualifies as part of the park system. He said he could see the city putting up about one-third of the project's cost through a bond issue if the remaining money can be found through other sources and that it would prove to be money well spent.

"It's difficult to do big capital investment projects like this on a pay-as-you-go basis," Courtney said, noting a bond issue will allow the city to make park upgrades and accomplish projects like the overlook now so that they can benefit residents for years to come rather than waiting to save the money as costs increase annually and facilities fall into greater disrepair.

"The Riverfront Development Committee has had so many great projects," Redevelopment Commissioner member Carey Strouse said. "The design of this is fantastic, the lighting looks great and I just thank you all for taking this on and giving us another challenge to solve."

inmates, down a few from a Feb. 25 projection of 304.

The design has undergone major changes in the past couple meetings. Sheriff Dave Thomas suggested reducing the training room on the south side of the building to make more room for evidence storage and eliminating an in-house courts facility that was proposed as an alternate bid.

Per Jail Commander Kenny Jasper's suggestion, the committee also decided on mirror-positioning the driveway leading to the north side of the building so that transport vans, trucks and larger vehicles wouldn't have to do three-point turns out of the lot. Thomas suggested a security fence wrapping around the property and separating the beginning of the driveway from the rest of the drive at the access control point.

Det. Yancy Denning highlighted the need for separate detective offices rather than one consolidated space as proposed in the current design due to the amount of phone calls they make and the potential for distraction. A small office would also need to be carved out for the employee who handles classification and warrants, he and other sheriff's office employees decided. The portion of the office for deputies could also see expansion in the future.

The interview rooms inside the larger CID space should also be flipped to be more accessible from the corridor on the left, members of the committee decided. This would keep suspects further away from the public lobby and reduce the amount of steps needed to take interviewees to and from the space.

DLZ architect Scott Carnegie said the jail project was nearing the end of the schematic design phase, after which DLZ will give a formal presentation to commissioners and present cost information. Planning will then move into the design development phase for more specific decisions on design and 3-D modeling.

After that, DLZ will present designs once again to commissioners with an updated cost estimate and move into the construction document phase where contractors will begin to get involved. Bidding and construction will follow.

Carnegie told members of the committee not to lose any sleep over other minor changes they want to add, adding that his firm was just getting the barebones down.

"Minor changes, flipping and flopping, rotating things … that's expected. We're just trying to flush out the big wholesale changes right now. So there's still an opportunity during the design development phase where we have a meeting like this, we sit down and we go through the spaces in much greater detail," Carnegie said.

A date for the next Jail Committee meeting had not been set.

Best drives HomeStreet to virtual victory

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Kelsey Best channeled his best Jimmy Shane impersonation and drove the U-6 Miss HomeStreet/Miss Madison to victory in the virtual APBA Gold Cup race in Madison as part of the H1 Unlimited E-League Racing Series on Saturday.

Best nailed the start and pulled away in the final heat, holding off race favorite Peyton Hopp on the final lap.

"This one was for you guys," Best said to the citizen-owners of Madison, Indiana. "I'd like to thank HomeStreet Bank and the citizens of Madison, Indiana, for being a part of this sport."

"This one was for you guys. I'd like to thank HomeStreet Bank and the citizens of Madison, Indiana, for being a part of this sport."

— Kelsey Best

The race, which was run on the HydroSim platform, was the second E-League race for H1 Unlimited, which has tried to salavage some action out of a summer in which nearly every actual race has been canceled or postponed due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Like the season-opener on the virtual course in Guntersville, Alabama, two weeks ago, actual H1 personalities pulled the lane assignments with Miss Madison drivers Steve David and Jeff Bernard as well as Miss Madison crew-member Trey Holt and his father Rob each drawing a heat. U-98 Graham Trucking American Dream driver Corey Peabody also drew a heat. Longtime race announcer Brad Luce again provided play-by-play on the live stream with U-11 J&D's co-owner Scott Raney providing the color.

Unlike the Guntersville race, which saw six different winners in preliminary heats, the Madison race was a two-man show early on. Hopp, the son of H1 driver Greg Hopp, won all four of his prelims aboard the U-10 Spirit of Detroit II while Scott Pryzbylski — who is also the game's developer — won three heats in the U-9 Delta/RealTrac with his only loss coming to Hopp in Heat 4A.

The final heat was a different story. Cei Bowen flipped his U-3 Grigg's Ace Hardware during the warm-up period and both Pryzbylski and Tim Goodman in the U-91 Goodman Real Estate/Miss Madison jumped the starting gun, turning the final into a three-boat affair.

Best secured lane one, nailed the start right on time and quickly pulled away. Hopp and Eddie Kanfoush in the U-99.9 Bucket List Miss Rock gave chase but neither could seriously challenge. Hopp made it close at the end but Best scored the wire-to-wire win.

"No one was going to let up and I was pushing that whole time," Best said. "Jeff Bernard was in my ear giving me the locations of where they were at. My heart is still pumping. That was a lot of fun."

Best got his start in hydroplane racing not behind a keyboard, but behind the wheel of the real thing driving for the Bononcini family in Seattle where he met Shane, who has driven for the Miss Madison Racing Team since 2014. Work took Best to Mesa, Arizona, but he has been able to stay apart of the sport he loves thanks to the HydroSim game.

Shane served as Best's spotter for the first race of the season but was unable to participate Saturday. Bernard, Shane's teammate and spotter, took up the position for the Madison race.

"(The Bononcini family) is a big reason why I'm involved in hydroplane racing. I just wanted to give them a shout-out," Best said. "I have very good memories with them and circumstances made me move to Arizona. Unfortunately, boat racing isn't as big here as in the northwest, but thanks to Scott (Pryzbylski) and this platform, I can still get the adrenaline pumping."

The H1 Unlimited E-League is expected to continue throughout the summer. The next scheduled race has yet to be announced.

Give what you want to give

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: I have a question on how to handle gift giving among extended family.

We are over age 60, and my husband feels very strongly that adults can buy whatever they want, and there is no need to send a gift. This is our second marriage. We both lost our spouses to cancer.

I like to remember family on special occasions. I often send a monetary gift less than $60. My husband points out that they never remember us on special occasions.

My husband is generous with his family, either by offering to fix something mechanical or by sending money. His family does reciprocate.

I use my own money to gift my family, and he does the same. But he gets angry with me.

Just wanting a second opinion. What do you think? — Double Standard?

Dear Double Standard?: Tell your husband to cut it out! If you want to give your family members a gift, then give them a gift. It is not about whether they are adults and can buy themselves things. It's that you take the time and think about them on special occasions.

In addition, it is not tit for tat. You don't give gifts so you get gifts. You give gifts because you love your family and want them to know you are thinking about them.

Dear Annie: I am an elderly person, and I purchased an AT&T phone that blocks all calls coming in except for the phone numbers you have listed in your phone. It tells the caller that if they leave their name, it will announce it, and if the person being called wants to answer it, they can.

This has saved me from a great many robocalls or calls from scammers. I chose to get the phone after my "grandson" called to tell me he was in jail. I told him to enjoy every minute there, hung up and got this phone. All elderly should have a phone like this. — This Phone Works

Dear This Phone Works: Thank you for your tip. It is wonderful that a phone itself can protect you from scammers so you don't have to deal with them.

Dear Annie: I truly love the answer you gave to Ticked Off. I was so surprised with how you responded to negativity with a positive answer! Your response will help to raise children in a more responsible and positive manner because it is true that children emulate what they see their parents do while growing up!

We, too, cannot enjoy the extra perks that the more affluent families can enjoy at amusement parks. So we make the best of it by filling our time while in the long lines. We play games! Our favorite is an app called "Heads Up!" When we play this with the kids, the time passes quickly, and before we know it, it's time to get on the ride.

So, thank you for your response to raise kids to be better people! Love it! — Heads Up

Dear Heads Up: What a fun game to engage the whole family! Thank you for your letter.

Three C's for a COVID-19 relationship

Dear Annie: I am a college student who has been dating a girl for about two months. She's from out of town but lives in the same city as me. Throughout the COVID-19 pandemic, she has been more isolated than usual. She has a roommate but otherwise feels lonely. I spend as much time with her as I can (respecting social distancing protocols, of course), and we text a lot.

In anticipation of having to stay home, I've taken on several projects that take up a lot of my free time. I am passionate about them. My girlfriend, who has more free time, will often video call me while I'm working, expecting me to immediately answer and talk for a while, even on days where we've spent hours together in person. If I try to politely decline, she says, "Ouch." How can I explain to her that, while I do love talking to her, I want to do other things, too, and don't appreciate being guilted over needing some personal time outside of my work? — Girlfriend Blues

Dear Girlfriend Blues: The best way to explain is exactly the way you did in your letter. It is very healthy that you have found things to keep you busy during the lockdown, and you should encourage your girlfriend to do the same.

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

The COVID-19 pandemic has been challenging for everyone. During stressful times, people use different coping mechanisms. Perhaps hers is to be needy while yours is to withdraw and find other things to do. Good relationships have the three c's: communication, compromise and commitment. After you have communicated what's in your letter, if you are both committed to the relationship, you might have to compromise with her as well.

Best of luck to you both, and stay safe and well!

Dear Annie: Your column "Nurses Offer a Hand to Hold" hit me hard — and gave me some solace at the same time. In 2003, my mother was living with us and had a heart attack (she'd had a couple before). The EMTs responded quickly and took her to the cardiac ICU, where she got excellent care.

She had expressed a strong wish to not be alone when she passed. As we got close to the end, I left what I thought were explicit directions to call me any time of day or night. I left her at about 10 p.m. one evening to get some rest and got a call at 7 the next morning that she died at about 3 a.m. I was crushed that I wasn't there! That has stayed with me to this day. My hope, and maybe one day my belief, is that a nurse like nurse Palmer was holding Mom's hand when her time came.

I hope the column comforts others as well. We all need to thank a nurse not only for their professional capabilities but also their personal care. — Thank a Nurse

Dear Thank a Nurse: I am sorry you lost your mother but grateful that you found comfort from nurse Palmer's letter. Wishing you and your family love and peace.

STATE OF INDIANA IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF
JEFFERSON COUNTY
SS:
COUNTY OF JEFFERSON
CAUSE NO. 39C01-2005-AD-00016
IN THE MATTER OF THE ADOPTION OF
PAISLEY GRACE BEAR,
Minor Child,
CHARLES MICHAEL MILLER
Petitioner,

NOTICE TO UNNAMED FATHER

The unnamed father of the child born to Rebecca Sue Miller (Bear) on April4, 2013, or the person who claims to be the father of the child born to Rebecca Sue Miller (Bear) on April 4, 2013 is notified that a petition for adoption of the child was filed on the 13th day of May, 2020 in the office of the Clerk of the Jefferson Circuit Court, 300 East Main Street, Room 203, Madison, Indiana 47250. If the unnamed putative father seeks to contest the adoption of the child, the unnamed putative father must file a motion to contest the adoption in accordance with IC 31-19-10-1 in the above named court within thirty (30) days after the date of service of this notice. This notice may be served by publication.
If the unnamed putative father does not file a motion to contest the adoption within thirty (30) days after service of this notice, the above named court shall hear and determine the petition for adoption. The unnamed putative father's consent irrevocably implied and the unnamed putative father loses the right to contest both the adoption or the validity of the unnamed putative father's implied consent to the adoption. The unnamed putative father loses the right to establish paternity of the child under IC 31-14.
Nothing Rebecca Sue Miller (Bear) or anyone else says to the unnamed putative father of the child relieves the unnamed putative father of his obligation under this notice.
Under Indiana law, a putative father is a person who is named as or claims that he may be the father of a child born out of wedlock but who has not yet been legally proven to be the child's father.
This notice complies with IC 31-19-4-4 but does not exhaustively set forth the unnamed putative father's legal obligations under the Indiana adoption statutes. A person being served with this notice should consult the Indiana adoption statutes.
The name and address of the attorney for the Petitioners is Devon M. Sharpe of Jenner & Pattison, 508 East Main Street, Madison, Indiana, 47250, Telephone: (812) 265-5132. Dated at Madison, Indiana, this 20th day of May, 2020.
